know’N’act helps Microsoft improve audience engagement

The Online Services Division (OSD) at Microsoft wanted to expedite the gathering of feedback to help it better understand how its presentations were being received. OSD turned to know’N’act to design a system that would provide them with instant audience feedback on a minute-by-minute basis that speakers could see in real-time.

The know’N’act system helped OSD quickly and easily deploy a solution that has become a benchmark for similar initiatives at Microsoft. Speakers can now see granular feedback to their presentations as they occur. Audiences have become more engaged and participative as seen by the large increase in feedback/response rates. The results have led OSD to request that know’N’act power all similar efforts across the entire division going forward.
